Haire entered the ele-vator at 547 Broadway, and the gentleman whose sanity has been in dispute Pending the Senate's Action But a "Why, good morning, Mr. Solomon," that Mr. Haire subsequently said seemed to indicate that his client is not such horrible man as he has been pic

The clerks and minor employees had been on the lookout all morning, and Mr. Solomon entered they were all assembled in the corner of the store all assembled in the corner of the store.
They hesitated when their employer entered, but were reassured when he shook hands with all, and then all began talking about how nice he looked in his wedding suit, which Mrs. Solomon had persuaded him to wear downtown this morning.

The most interesting formality was yet to come, however, and even big Mr.

this morning.

The most interesting formality was yet to come, however, and even big Mr. Haire says he held his breath as David Solomon entered the office, where his brother, Henry, the last-named man's brother-in-law, Mr. Kaiser, and Marcus, the salesman who was so sure that David had gone daft, were seated.

As David and Mr. Haire approached the office Henry opened the door, and extending his hand, said, coldly:

"Good morning, David."

"Good morning, David."

"Good morning, Presponded David, as he formally touched the extended hand "What do you think of yourself?" he continued.

"Tut, tut!" said Mr. Haire, "none of that, now," and then Mr. Henry Solomon shook hands with the lawyer, who had described him as worse than Judas. As he did so, he said:

"Let bygones be bygones, Mr. Haire; it's all over now."

There was an awkward pause just then, during which David glared at Marcus and Marcus grew pale, but finally it was overcome by Henry producing a gold watch. a number of rings and a pocketbook, which he handed to his brother. They had been taken from David when he was committed. The money returned to him was the first he has had since Aug. 8.

Then Henry, Brother-in-Law Kaiser and Marcus, the salesman, all picked up their hats and solemely walked out, David Solomon said all his employees who tried to make him out insane will also walk out soon, and those who were loyal to him and their former colaborer, Miss Thomas, now Mrs. Solomon, will be promoted.

It took Mr. Solomon only an hour or so to learn the exact condition of the niss Thomas, now airs, Solomon, which promoted.

It took Mr. Solomon only an hour or so to learn the exact condition of the firm's business, and then he said the stock had been allowed to run down to such an extent that he would have to begin ordering goods immediately. He expressed regret that the So,000 purchase which his brother asserted was offeof of his insanity, but which the Sheriff's jury declared had been a good business transaction, had not been allowed to stand. He said the firm needs just about that much stock to fill present orders and be prepared for future ones.

ent orders and be prepared for future ones.

During the time a reporter was in the store with Attorney Haire Mr. Solomon was giving directions to his employees, and was always obeyed with prompress. He was dignified, and he spoke with authority, but at the same time was courteous to all.

He explained to the reporter that he did not care to discuss the $50,000 damage suit that he expects to bring against his brother until he gets his business in good shape again.

"That will be attended to later on." he said, "as will the disposition of employees who were traitors."

It is the intention of Mr. and Mrs. Solomon, it was said, will adopt the Hebrew faith.
